Consent for Telehealth - Occupational Therapy

Occupational therapy provided in a telehealth format is eligible for reimbursement as described in the SHARS Handbook. In SameGoal, the telehealth consent form describes:

- Telehealth services to be provided
- Expected benefits
- Possible risks
- Additional information, if any

The form captures that the parent/guardian or adult student understands:

- Services will not be provided in person
- Risks and benefits
- Laws that protect the privacy of student educational records, including FERPA, apply
- Regular attendance is needed for services to be effective and progress monitored
- Information provided
- Right to withhold or withdraw consent for telehealth services

Finally, the form captures:

- Whether the parent/guardian or adult student grants informed consent
- Signature information
